WRITING

Once the great writer and philosopher William Shakespeare said that all the world is a stage and all the men and women are merely players. It's hard to say something against this point of view. At the first sight we really are actors on the stage. Every person has ~~his/her own~~ in his/her own role and performs it. Shakespeare believed that every human has destiny and all his/her life is predetermined.

In my opinion there is no such thing as fate. Our life is not written on a piece of paper like a scenario for some play. Every person can change his/her life in one moment. I truly believe that we are the owners of our lives.

As an example I can tell about the girl I know. She really wanted a new mobile phone. And as you can guess she always had a lack of pocket money and her family didn't have abilities to give her more. She lives in a small village so there is no places where a teenager can get a job. But she was so tired of not having money that she went to the cloth shop and asked for at least part-time job. She was waiting for declining because she was only 16. But she was employed as a recruit. This kind of job might seem to hard for a teen. But she actually liked it. As the time passed, she became able to buy her cherished mobile phone soon. This story shows that if you really want to change something in your life you obviously are able to do it.

To conclude, I will repeat that our life is only in our own hands. And maybe we have some role given, but we also have abilities to change our roles as we want. Life is a stage play, so play a role whatever you want to.
